

UN must ensure 'human rights' in Kashmir.

During a joint press conference with the Pakistani Foreign Minister Bilawal Bhutto Zardari, his newly appointed German counterpart Annalena Baerbock said that a constructive approach and confidence-building measures between Pakistan and India could play an essential role in improving their relations and resolving the Kashmir issue.

Baerbock said during a joint press conference with Bilawal Bhutto Zardari during his first official visit to Pakistan that a constructive approach and confidence-building measures between Pakistan and India would play an essential role in improving their relations and resolving the Kashmir issue.

Responding to a question, Ms. Baerbock said that she supports the resolution of the Kashmir issue under UN resolutions. Baerbock welcomed the move to agree to a ceasefire along the Line of Control and stressed the need to de-escalate tensions from both sides.

Bilawal said that peace in South Asia "depends on peaceful resolution of the Kashmir issue."

Bilawal's victim mindset on the remarks on Prophet Mohammad

According to the official news agency APP report, the Pakistani foreign minister called on the international community to take immediate cognizance of the increasing cases of atrocities and Islamophobia allegedly against minorities in India. Referring to the recent controversial remarks made by BJP leaders on Prophet Mohammad, Bilawal said that such "derogatory and reprehensible statements have hurt the sentiments of Muslims across the world." It is said that Jammu and Kashmir was, is, and always will be an integral part of it. India has also advised Pakistan to accept the reality and stop the anti-India propaganda.

At a joint press conference with his Pakistani counterpart Bilawal Bhutto in Islamabad on Tuesday, Baerbock assured journalists that the UN has a role to play in ensuring "human rights" in "Kashmir" and that a "constructive approach from both sides." is. The only way out is to improve relations between Pakistan and India.

"The foundation of the United Nations is that human rights are indivisible, and it matters to every region of the world. It matters to Kashmir as well", said Baerbock. We also support the work to ensure that all human rights are being guaranteed."

"We believe that both sides' constructive approach and confidence-building measures are the only way forward to improve relations between Pakistan and India. The bilateral agreement was a positive step in implementing a ceasefire along the Line of Control last year. Both Nations should take more steps to follow this line. Germany's first female foreign minister said, "If provocations have the power of different governments, one does not react, but stands up for itself and international principles."

Former Indian ambassador to Germany Gurjit Singh said Ms. Baerbock's comments seemed "vulgar" and "clearly unprepared," as the main thrust of her visit to Pakistan was to settle the fate of approx. 60,000 Afghan refugees, of whom about 18600, Germany has agreed to provide asylum with Pakistan's logistical support.

In the context of Jammu & Kashmir as a 'disputed territory' for decades, Germany has come a long way. In recent years, German Administration has quietly changed the earlier description of Jammu and Kashmir on the website of the German Foreign Ministry to 'Union Territory.'

Several years ago, a camera-friendly German ambassador to India organized an open-air Beethoven concert 'for the people of Kashmir' in Srinagar: a festival that could not have been possible without the cooperation and permission of the Indian government.

There is no doubt that Berlin will have some faces and red faces: most of all, those who consider 42-year-old Baerbock inexperienced and unsuitable for it, in light of both the Ukraine crisis and the growing threat.
